NC SWO Fall Retreat 2018

Living Worry-Free

Many of us spend a lot of time worrying. We worry about our schedules, our health, our families, our jobs, our government, and oh so much more. Jesus commands in Matthew 6:31, “Do not worry,” yet we act as if worrying is still an option.

Whether it is worry about a specific situation or just a life-long habit of worrying about everything, join us for this women’s retreat and learn to stand strong against these destructive thoughts.

“When you get a deeper revelation of God’s great love for you, worry and anxiety can be replaced with peace of mind, security and confidence,” says Jenni Zima, retreat leader.

Join your faith sisters in the beautiful mountains of Blowing Rock for this spiritual get-away. The retreat will begin with supper on Friday evening at our past NCSWO President’s home in Blowing Rock (You’ll get directions when you check in at the convention center.) and end after worship on Sunday morning.

Retreat Leader:

The Rev. Jenni Zima

Jenni Zima is originally from Charleston, SC and graduated with her M.Div. from Lutheran Theological Southern Seminary in 1998. She has served as pastor of churches in Falls Church, Virg.; Gastonia, N.C., and Reidsville, N.C.

Currently she teaches preschool at First Presbyterian in Burlington, N.C., and is an active member of Friedens Lutheran Church in Gibsonville where her husband Bill is pastor. Jenni enjoys gardening, singing, decorating, photography, puzzles with retro themes, and schlepping her 11-year-old daughter Lydia to soccer, softball, dance, orchestra and 4-H.

COST: Includes three meals on Saturday and Sunday breakfast. (Friday evening meal is being hosted by past NC SWO President Susan Harris at her home in Blowing Rock.)
